These fully cooked, authentic ethnic varieties are designed for the more discerning restaurant requiring a premium eating experience for its patrons, without the significant time and labor required to serve them. They are pre-cooked, pre-seasoned, and pre-sliced, making them convenient and easy to use for any restaurant.

In addition, Grecian Delight | Kronos will also be serving their newest plant-based innovation, "Falafel Tots" a snack-sized and poppable version of a traditional falafel fritter, available in a variety of flavors including traditional and feisty varieties. These will also be available as patties to provide a unique plant-based alternative to burgers.

Peter Parthenis Jr., CEO of Grecian Delight | Kronos, said, "Our goal at the show is to showcase our broad portfolio of Greek and Mediterranean foods as well as to excite and delight operators and consumers with our new ethnic flavors, healthful options and labor-saving solutions. We are excited to introduce some new products at the show this year. Our ReadyCarved line of global proteins will highlight several ethnic flavors including our newest, Coconut Curry Chicken. We are also excited to showcase our newest plant-based innovation, Falafel Tots and Patties, where we combine the benefits of vegetable-based protein with the ethnic fusion of global flavors. It's unlike anything else on the market today, and we believe it will provide consumers with a more authentic option over analog meat substitutes. We invite everyone to stop by our booth and experience it for themselves."
